MISSION STATEMENT

Dietary Managers Association is an organization of professionals dedicated to providing optimum nutritional care through Food Service Management

PRESIDENTS MESSAGE TO MEMBERS

Hope everyone had a Great holiday season. Some of my goals for the new year are to raise money for the Food pantries for the year, so far at our campus has raised $4,600 and have collected 500 pounds of food. So I'm asking everyone to help with this goal for our State. Let me know what you have done for any food pantry. We have held bake sales, done 1/2 pots on Fridays, and staff have given some of their vacation hours to help me with this goal. I also would like to increase our membership, I have 4 people taking the test in March and 2 others going thru the class. I have talked with some administrators about their Dietary Managers attending meetings, most of them that I talked to said that their managers can attend meetings so if anyone is having trouble with not getting to go to meetings please call me maybe I can talk to your administrator for you. Also to let everyone know we are looking into combining some to the districts, we will be discussing this at the Spring State meeting in April. If you are looking for a ride to the spring meeting, we are working on carpooling a group from our area, please call me if you would like to join us.

Hope to see everyone at the Spring Meeting in Valparaiso on

April 21-22,2010

MEMBER'S CORNER

Last fall District 6 member Mary Lefler's home burnt down. District 6 members collected donations of clothing and necessities. Our prayers go to Mary and her family.

And everyone is familiar with Bertha Mohammed, did you know that she has 10 children, 41 grandchildren, 12 great grand children and that #12 weighed in at 4 pounds.

Sue Bowman and Rose Williams are looking to car pool if any one is interested please contact them.

As everyone know by now National DMA meeting is being held in Chicago, DMA is celebrating it's 50th anniversary. I am hoping that Indiana has a good turn out for this event, our own Tom Thaman will a guest speaker.

So if any one is interested sharing a room with me please contact me .

Did you know? Preschoolers laugh about 300 times/day, while adults laugh only 15 times/day on average.

DMA | Proud Past ★ Bright Future
Dietary Managers Association

In November 2009, the FDA issued the 2009 Food Code. This document, which serves as a model for health jurisdictions as well as the CMS foodservice sanitation standards, is updated every four years, with a Food Code Supplement release in the two-year interim.

Although the 2009 edition is not “law” yet for most practicing dietary managers, it is likely a glimpse into the future of sanitation regulations. In addition, it represents best practices supported by current science.

Among the updates in this edition are new designations for the priority level of provisions, the designation of leafy greens as a potentially hazardous (temperature control for safety) food, a stipulation that foodservice employees be trained in food allergy awareness, updates to standards for sanitizing solutions, allowance for new hand drying technology, and a clarification that foodservice establishments should be free of pests.

Setting Priorities

New throughout the Food Code is a system for identifying the priority of each provision. The FDA has created three priority levels:

... Priority Item, marked with a superscript P, means a provision of the Food Code whose application contributes directly to the elimination, prevention, or reduction of a hazard to an acceptable level. The FDA applies it when there is no other provision that more directly controls the hazard.

... Priority Foundation Item, marked with a superscript Pf, means a provision that supports a Priority Item and requires specific managerial steps in order to control risks. These can be actions, equipment, or procedures, e.g., training employees, keeping records, developing a HACCP plan.

... Core Item, which has no superscript symbol, means anything that is not a P or Pf item.

The language in FDA definitions for these items is the language of HACCP. In many cases, dietary managers will recognize Priority Items as the types of controls often set as critical control points (CCPs). Depending on an individual operation’s flow chart, many of these items can represent the last step in the flow of food for controlling a hazard. For example, endpoint cooking time and temperature standards, as well as temperatures and concentrations of sanitizing solutions, are Priority Items in the new Food Code.

Meanwhile, examples of Priority Foundation Items, which are similar to control points (CPs) in many HACCP plans, include calibrating a food thermometer and using a handwashing sink only for that purpose. In this system, Core Items tend to correspond to standard operating procedures (SOPs), which forms the essential framework in managing food safety.

Also of note in this new system is the emphasis on active managerial control, a concept FDA offers in its publication, Managing Food Safety: A Manual for the Voluntary Use of HACCP Principles for Operators of Food Service and Retail Establishments (see Food Protection Connection, September 2005). As defined by the FDA, this means “purposeful incorporation of specific actions or procedures by management into the operation of your business to attain control over food-borne illness risk factors.”
