

Today, Georgia ANFP will put the spotlight on three key individuals and our Chapter. Georgia-ANFP has been dedicated this past year to organizing efforts, engaging members, planning for the future of our Chapter, and working with legislation to recognize CDMs in our state. Everyone featured here has significantly supported our initiatives.

Felix Jones:

Felix, Past President of Georgia-ANFP, has over 35 years in the Food Service Industry. He became a CDM-CFPP in 2018 and has been a Servsafe Proctor for over 10 years. Felix is active at the National Level of ANFP and serves on the Chapter Leadership Team (CLT).

Elected as President-Elect in 2020, he became the Chapter's President in 2022, serving for three years. He won the Prestigious Diamond Award 2023 for Georgia-ANFP and helped start the CDM recognition project in Georgia.

Felix is committed to family and community, serving with various organizations, booster clubs, domestic violence awareness programs, and as Chair for the Board of Elections in his county. Felix will receive the CDM Volunteer of the Year award 2025 at ACE in Minnesota.

House Representative Kim Schofield:

State Representative Kim Schofield serves the citizens of House District 63, covering various areas in Southeast Atlanta. Elected to the Georgia Assembly in 2017, she is involved in multiple committees, including Urban Affairs, Small Business Development, Arts and Entertainment, Health, Commission on Women and Labor. Kim Schofield emphasizes access, action, and accountability in her leadership.

Representative Schofield has supported Georgia-ANFP in promoting the recognition of their certification (CDM) in Georgia. She has participated in meetings and invited Georgia-ANFP Board members to discuss the significance of CDM certification at the State Capitol.

House Representative Kim Schofield will receive the Public Policy of Leadership Award at ACE in Minnesota for her contributions to raising awareness about the importance of the CDM certification.

Ariel Womack:

Ariel Womack has been in the food service industry for 15 years. She initially joined Georgia-ANFP as a Secretary and recently took on the roles of Webmaster and Newsletter Editor for over three years. Ariel holds multiple responsibilities within our organization and chapter. Additionally, she is pursuing her bachelor's degree in Dietetics. Her significant contributions were recognized when ANFP featured her as the Volunteer of the Month for June 2025. Ariel continues to move our Chapter forward with everything she does.

Our final spotlight is focused on Georgia-ANFP. Georgia-ANFP has been consistently recognized over the years, continually enhancing its performance by leveraging resources from our national organization, along with contributions from members and the community. This collaborative effort ensures optimal outcomes in terms of education, contribution, and service. Over the past five years, Georgia-ANFP has dedicated thousands of volunteer hours and funds to various organizations and is currently advocating for the recognition of CDM in the state of Georgia. Since 2020, Georgia has been honored with numerous ANFP accolades, including the Diamond Award in 2023. In 2025, Georgia-ANFP will be awarded the following distinctions:

1. Diamond Award Finalist (every year since 2021), winner in 2023.
2. Diamond Award nomination
3. Communications Award (every year since 2016)
4. Membership Award (every year since 2021)
5. Government Affairs Award
6. State Achievement Award Platinum (recipient of the Gold Award twice, in 2024 and 2023)

Georgia-ANFP will receive these prestigious awards at ACE in Minnesota. We are proud of our achievements and deeply appreciate the unwavering support of our members. Let us celebrate continuous success together.

Best regards,
Georgia-ANFP
