Policy Wording:

- A. Provide the exhibitor with space to set-up his/her booth or table at a fair fee.
- B. Each exhibit space should be the same size, however, the exhibitor may request and pay for more than one booth space.
- C. The space should be a location in the hotel/motel that is well lighted and clean, with trash removal provided. Discuss your exhibits with the staff at the hotel/motel where you are planning to hold your meeting.
 - 1. Inquire whether there is enough space for both your meeting and the exhibits.
 - 2. Inspect the space before scheduling your meeting at that particular hotel/motel.
 - 3. Ask to see a floor plan of the exhibit area with the booth spaces diagramed. Find out how this can be modified for the number of exhibit booths you will have. If this is not to your satisfaction, ask for changes.
 - 4. Find out whether you will be charged for exhibit space. Many hotels/motels charge by the square foot of space used. This includes booth space plus aisle and public space.
- D. Make sure the exhibit space is located close to the rooms where your meetings will be held. A good flow of traffic is a must if you want your members to visit the exhibits. Do not place your exhibits in another building or in another wing of the hotel/motel. Avoid, if at all possible, placing the exhibits on another floor from the meeting space. Unless your meeting attendance is very large, you will have a difficult time getting members to walk a distance to get to the exhibits.
- E. Make sure the space you choose for the exhibit is accessible to the loading dock of the hotel/motel so that the exhibitors can easily unload their booths and supplies.

- F. Schedule sufficient time for members to visit the exhibits. Avoid scheduling sessions during the exhibit hours. Watch for such problems as scheduling the exhibit hours from 12 noon to 2:00 p.m. and then serving a sit down luncheon in the dining room from 12:30 to 1:30 p.m. If the vendors had samples to eat they will not be hungry.
- G. Find out from the hotel/motel staff where the exhibitor can obtain water, store frozen supplies, heat products or wash utensils. Let the hotel/motel know that your exhibitors are food vendors. If the hotel/motel objects to an exhibit that may produce cooking odors or are concerned about possible spillage on floors or carpeting, etc., then perhaps you may need to consider scheduling your meeting in a facility that will allow this type of exhibit. DMA vendors sell food. To deny them the opportunity to provide food samples for tasting denies them the ability to successfully market their products to you, the customer.
- H. Find out from the hotel/motel staff whether they can set-up exhibits for you and what the charges will be. They may be able to set-up for table-top exhibits if the exhibit is not large. If they cannot do this, ask if they can recommend a decorating company/exhibit service contractor.
- If your exhibitors are bringing exhibit booths, you will require the service of a decorator who will provide the pipe and draping that sections off each booth. The decorator will charge you for each booth set-up. Be sure to inquire about other additional charges.
- I. Discuss with both the hotel/motel and the decorator whether the exhibitors may set-up their own tables or booths. Some hotels/motels have union agreements that state only union labor may be used. Find out what is not allowed and follow those rules.

- J. You will need to develop some rules and regulations and a contract along with additional information about your exhibit and meeting. This is called a prospectus. This is mailed to prospective exhibitors. It is very important that you start this task early. This information should be mailed no less than six months prior to your meeting. This means that you need to begin working on the material at least eight to nine months prior to your meeting.

Your prospectus should include:

1. Date of your meeting
 2. Place of meeting
 3. Exhibit hours
 4. Size of booths or table (exhibit space)
 5. Exhibit Fees
 6. Dates and times for exhibit set-up and tear-down
 7. Name, address and telephone number of person to contact
 8. Detailed scaled diagram of the exhibit space booth layout (floor plan). The hotel/motel should be able to provide you with this. The floor plan should note location of special facilities such as water, drainage, gas, etc. You should approve the floor plan before it is put to use so that the exhibits are set-up and arranged the way you want them to be.
 9. Your prospectus need not be fancy but should be printed, well organized and neat in design. If you want to attract exhibitors, you must have a professional look.
- K. The rules and regulations are a most important part to your prospectus. They tell the exhibitor what he/she can or cannot do. They are an agreement between you and the exhibitor. (A part of this article includes a model contract with a model set of rules and regulations on another page.)

- L. A few weeks to several months (depending on the size of the exhibit) prior to your exhibit, you will need to make booth or space assignments.
1. Ask the exhibitor to list on the contract several choices for space location.
 2. Then assign space according to a fair plan. You will find that several exhibitors may have requested the same space. Your previous exhibitors should have first choice on space.
 3. Ask exhibitors to state which companies they do not wish to be located near. Honor those requests. Competitive companies usually prefer to be located in different areas of the exhibit hall.
 4. After your previous exhibitors have been assigned, then assign the new exhibitors according to the date in which you received the contracts.
 5. Notify the exhibitors of their booth space assignment and the booth number. If they are shipping any materials to the hotel/motel, they will need to know the booth number.
- M. You must develop a good bookkeeping system.
1. If your exhibit is small and your booth cost is low, request the exhibitor to submit the entire booth cost fee with his/her contract.
 2. If the fee is high, you may allow the vendor to submit 50% of the fee with his/her contract, with the balance due several weeks prior to the exhibit date.
 3. When you receive the contract and fee check, send an acknowledgment to the exhibitor.
- N. Make sure the exhibit booths or tables are set-up prior to the time the exhibitors will be moving in and setting up their individual booths or tables. Some one at the hotel/motel should assist with this.

Let the hotel/motel know that your exhibitors are food vendors. If the hotel/motel objects to an exhibit that may produce cooking odors or are concerned about possible spillage on floors or carpeting, etc., then perhaps you may need to consider scheduling your meeting in a facility that will allow this type of exhibit. ANFP vendors sell food. To deny them the opportunity to provide food samples for tasting denies them the ability to successfully market their products to you, the customer.

The Ten Steps to Planning a District Meeting

Indiana Dietary
Managers Association

The Ten Steps to Planning a District Meeting

By Tom Thaman, CDM, CFPP

Indiana DMA President 2005-2006

Step One:

Select a date and location

Secure the date and location at the last district meeting. Try to find a central location in the district but if you do it an area that is not, make sure you have a second meeting in the opposite area of the district. It is best to find a location (usually a member's facility) that can provide lunch at no charge as the meeting can provide income for the district. Selecting a Hotel will increase your cost and you risk the possibility of losing money for the District. Sysco and US Foodservice all have meeting rooms if they are in your area. These vendors have been very generous to Indiana DMA and are usually very willing to assist with location.

Due Date: Six months prior to the date.

Step Two:

Begin building a program.

It is usually best to have someone assist you in obtaining speakers. Most District Meetings should be at least 5 CEU's or five speakers or less if you have a speaker speaking for two hours. Sometimes, effective district meetings have a theme such as skills building, kitchen operations or regulatory or clinical issues. Below are sources of speakers.

- Vendors
- Consultant Dietitians
- Peers and Co Workers
- State Department of Health
- DMA Members

Due Date: Three months prior to the meeting

Step Three:

Obtain your mailing labels

All District President can call for free mailing labels at the DMA national office. Make sure you tell them what districts. Also, to invite student members in your district, ask for a list of student labels. Make sure they are separate mailing lists as you may want to send a separate letter.

Due Date: Three months prior to the meeting

Step Four:

Get your newsletter and agenda ready and mail out to members

Compose a newsletter for your district members and attach the agenda for the meeting. Make sure you have copies made for each member. Purchase a roll of stamps and make sure you keep the receipt so you can be reimbursed. Make sure there are directions to the location of your meeting. Make sure there is a contact number on your letter so you will know how many people are attending. It is best to have your information out at least 30 days prior to the meeting so members can request off.

Due Date: 30 days prior to the meeting.

Step Five:

Get your CEU's approved by The Certifying Board of Dietary Managers

All speakers must be approved by DMA for CEU's. CEU approval can be made by completing the form on the DMA Website under member services. In addition, you must complete a simple evaluation form for all speakers. There are samples on the Website that can be filled out. CEU's are not assigned unless an evaluation form is sent. You can fax the information to DMA and you will receive your approval when they send you a sign in sheet. This is a very important piece to planning a meeting. DMA likes to have these no later than 30 days prior to the meeting. If you happen to have a speaker cancellation, if you replace the speaker you need not inform DMA.

Due Date: 30 days prior to the meeting

Step Six:

Reconfirm you speakers.

In a district meeting, make a courtesy call two weeks prior to the meeting just to make sure your speaker has the correct information on the day of the meeting. Make sure they have the correct directions and have them be there at least ½ hour before they speak.

Due Date:

No later than two weeks before the meeting

Step Seven:

Assign members who are assisting with the meetings duties on the day of the meetings.

A meeting is difficult to conduct and execute on your own. Make sure you have some assistance. The district treasurer should be there to collect money and to give out raffle tickets. The host member should coordinate set up with their facility. If you use a vendor's facility, make sure someone is there to coordinate set up.

Due Date:

Two weeks before the meeting

Step Eight:

Purchase your Door Prizes and Speakers Gifts.

This can be delegated out but if you are doing it yourself, it is customary to provide a nice gift basket or small token of appreciation to all speakers. They are giving their time and expertise for free to our members and leave them with a good impression of IDMA.

Door prizes are one of the essential elements of raising money for the District so you should give it some thought. An expensive grand prize can raise excellent money. Here are some ideas for Door Prizes and Speakers Gifts. There are many more but here are a few.

Raffle Prizes

- DVD Player
- Small TV
- Silk Arrangements
- Plants
- Scented Candles
- Holiday and Theme Wreaths
- Glass Vases
- Gift Certificates
- Movie Tickets

Speakers Gifts

- Gift Baskets
- Ball Point Pen Set
- Small Calculators
- Tote Bags
- Silk Arrangements
- Gift Certificates

Due Date: One week prior to the meeting

Step Nine:

Plan a short business meeting the day of the meeting

During the day of the meeting, make sure you have a short business meeting at preferably at lunch to conduct district business. The secretary can read the minutes from the last meeting, there should be a treasurer's report. Also, you should discuss and encourage leadership by asking for volunteers to host meetings and run for future offices. You can also give information regarding state and national meetings. You should also take this time to introduce new members.

Due Date: Plan agenda at least one week prior to the meeting.

Step Ten:

Turn in your signed attendance sheet after the meeting

This is a very important piece of the meeting. The sign in sheet should be turned in no later than 30 days after the meeting. Make sure everyone has their DMA number on the sheet. The treasurer or secretary can give each member a certificate of attendance although it is not necessary if the CE U's have been pre approved.

Due Date: No later than 30 days after the meeting.

Notes:
